

A photograph of St James's Church Centre, a historic stone building with a prominent spire. The church is made of light-colored stone and features Gothic-style windows and a large arched entrance with a wooden door. A paved path leads to the entrance, flanked by black bollards. In the foreground, a green and grey car is partially visible on the left, and a brick planter with purple flowers is on the right. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds.

A vision for church and community in Alnwick

When the decision was taken to re-develop the St. James`s buildings, we were seeking not only to make our premises suitable for a church in the 21st century - but also to offer facilities that would be a valuable asset for the whole town.

The new name - The St. James`s Church Centre - reflects this wish. We now have a resource well-suited to meet the needs of groups of all ages. It will provide a meeting place for numbers large and small.

We hope that those who used our premises in the past will want to come back to this attractive and modern building, and that others will find in it a place that meets their needs.

What has happened?

The church building has been split in two. The Sanctuary is now located on the upper floor. Though the primary purpose is for worship, weddings and funerals, it is also available for concerts, drama, workshops, conferences and similar events.

The Sanctuary itself will seat up to 150 people and is flexible in its layout. It contains an electronic organ, a moveable digital piano and audio/visual display facilities.

Access and facilities for disabled people are provided throughout the building, and include a lift to the upper level.

All halls and rooms have a loop system for the hard-of-hearing.

The anteroom, just outside and linked to the Sanctuary, is small but suitable for compact displays.

The Main Hall, downstairs, is a large space that can be used for meetings. It is licenced for up to 150 people but with comfortable seating for 100. It will also accommodate activities for children and young people - including uniformed organisations - and other, informal and recreational events.

The wooden floor makes it suitable for dancing.

The Kitchen - located just off the hall, with hatch-access, is new and fully-equipped, providing facilities for full catering or light refreshments.

The Embleton Room, also on the ground floor, is suitable for smaller meetings, holding up to 30 people. Any of these rooms can be hired separately or in combination.

Extra facilities available for use include: Tables, chairs, cutlery and crockery.
